Abstract

That chair - or throne - has been imagined as a place of meditation and catharsis to free oneself from the excesses of the lagoon city.

Built and deconstructed in durmast oak fossil, then processed with the Japanese Shouji Sugi Ban technique. It is enriched with precious elements like the Grottesche Craquelé fabric from the historical weaving mill Luigi Bevilacqua and a glass fragment engraved by our master craftsmen where the ubiquitous San Marco Lion with its warning appears.

Cariega is a piece of the Finds collection.
